

INSANITY IS NOLAN'S PLEA TO THE JURY

Florence Dugan's Trial May Be Nearing The End--Up To Jury To Decide
The Question.

EVIDENCE ON SPECIAL PLEA IS IN

Arguments Of The Contesting Attorney Commenced This Afternoon---Court Room Crowded With Curious
People Filled With Morbid Curiosity.

Although George Schumaker sustained his calm and collected appearance throughout his examination yesterday, he gasped and breathed hard when Attorney Nolan finally said: "That's all," and the prosecution, instead of dismissing him, asking another question or two. For many days he had been so weak that his voice was scarcely above a whisper but he had been moving himself up for this appearance for weeks. Whiskey, nitroglycerine, strychnine, and a full grain of morphine were administered to him yesterday. He faced not only a courtroom filled with spectators but also his mother and sister who had not believed some of the things which had been said against him until they heard them from his own lips. He was taken back to his home in a state of collapse, though his present condition is not said to be critical. It was the understanding that the cross-examination should not last over an hour and to this agreement Attorney Nolan rigidly adhered.

In answer to questions by the prosecution he said that Florence Dugan had on several occasions threatened him with bodily harm; that while he was boarding at Kohn's he had shown him a 22 calibre revolver and said that she would practice and fix him if he went with any other woman; that he took this weapon away from her and also another one, under similar conditions, at Farrell's last summer. The latter weapon was loaded at the time. It was presented in court as one of the State's exhibits and identified by the witness. On the night of the shooting he said that she came up to him on Academy street and said: "I think I'll settle with you right away." "I said: 'Keep away or I'll shove you into the street. She walked back of me and shot." "Question: "Did you use the word 'peek away' or any similar expression?"

Answer: "No sir." In answer to inquiries from the defense, Schumaker said that he had been married five years before he met Florence Dugan and that his wife left him and went to her home in Ridge-way, Wis. With regard to the back of the defendant coming into his room, related in the supposed dying statement, he said that he was drunk and made her leave. He insisted that he had never insisted on her paying him money or knocking her down.

Question: "How much did you consider that you owed Florence?" Answer: "I didn't consider that I owed her anything." Question: "You knew that you got all she earned?" Answer: "I knew that I didn't." Witness said that he never said in her room a week, that a night and a day was the longest period he ever spent there at one time. He didn't like her but was afraid she would tell his folks.

Question: "You were very considerate and thoughtful of your folks, weren't you, George?" Answer: "Yes sir." Witness admitted that he earned about $2.50 a day and spent his own money in having a good time. Darlen Men on the Stand Eugene Putnam of Beloit, who formerly resided in Darlen, was next called by the prosecution. He said that Miss Dugan's reputation in a general way was bad about 1901 when he was working in a livery stable in the village. Understandably, a bridegroom told him that he had been out with her and that she was sporty. Witness could give the names of no other persons who had made remarks against her.

Alma Baldwin, married of Clinton and former night watchman, said that he knew the defendant when she lived in Clinton and that her reputation was not good. A man named "Bud" Leav had told him on one occasion that he had been out with her for a good time. When asked by ATTY. Nolan why he had not arrested Leav after such a remark, witness became somewhat embarrassed. He reiterated his former statement, however, and said that two other young men of bad character had made remarks which reflected on her character. The time of all this was ten years ago.

Charles Kitter and Clayton Stoker testified that according to hearsay her reputation was not good. Neither could furnish names of persons who had spoken against her.

Versions of the Shooting Mrs. Louie Lettitude, who had charge of the hotel at Darlen where Schumaker boarded and Florence Dugan was employed, testified that the defendant was in good health, able to work all the time, and never lost a day on account of sickness. She declared that Mike McKinney told the defendant that Schumaker was a married man after the latter had been there a couple of weeks.

Officer William Mason told the story of the shooting. He said that he was talking with a party at the corner of Milwaukee and Academy streets about 7:20 in the evening when he heard a report down the street. His first impression was that it came from a torpedo but he looked in that direction just in time to see a man fall. Schumaker was lying on his side and propped up on one elbow and when the witness asked him who fired, he indicated the defendant who was standing nearby with the revolver in her hand. On the way to the station witness asked her why she had committed the deed and the woman had answered that she had told him and warned him and that the man was her husband. Witness identified the revolver which was presented in evidence. At the time the defendant was arrested witness thought that she was a little less excited than he or any other person would be after committing such an act. She seemed to be mentally responsible and in his judgment was capable of judging between right and wrong. In answer to ATTY. Nolan's question, witness was unable to state whether, knowing the difference between right and wrong, the defendant was able to choose between them.

Was to Marry Schumaker

Miss Mota Smith, a comely young woman who was dragged into the ugly tragedy, took the stand and testified that she was 25 years of age and had lived in Watertown for the past two years. She was with Schumaker on the night of the shooting near a saloon on Academy street. "We were coming down the street when he said: 'There she comes now.' I said: 'I'm so afraid--what'll I do?' He said: 'Why? She can't hurt you.' This woman came up and said: 'Mr. Schumaker, I've a bone to pick with you and we might as well settle it right now.' He said: 'I've nothing to say to you--I'm through with you.' She stopped between us and then she shot him, and as he reeled I ran."

Question: "Did he tell her to 'Go to it'?" Answer: "No."

Question: "Were you engaged to marry him?" Answer: "Yes."

Question: "How long had you been engaged to him?" Answer: "Three days."

Witness identified the threatening letters sent to her by Florence Dugan and Mrs. Frye. She said that she cut them the morning of the day the shooting occurred and came here to see about them. When questioned along this line she said that she came here to see that no more such letters should be sent. She did not know then where Miss Dugan lived and did not, up to that time, make an effort to find and interview her.

City Marshal Holds Her Sane "She was crying when I went into the woman's apartment at the city lockup and somewhat excited, though not particularly so when we took her to the county jail. I should say that she was rational," said City Marshal Appleby. "In the woman she asked me if he was dead and I said: 'You can't shoot your way out of an asylum, can you?' She said: 'No, I couldn't have married the first one--but it close to his back.' She said: 'What do you think I'll get for this?' and I said: 'I don't know.' She said she hoped he wouldn't die. I called the sheriff's wife to examine her and she said: 'I haven't a thing on me--I'm honest to God I haven't.' Witness thought she was mentally responsible but would not say that even though she could distinguish between right and wrong, she possessed the power to choose.

Northrup of Same Opinion Emmett Northrup, one of the witnesses of the shooting, said that his attention was attracted to the spot by hearing a woman's voice pitched above the normal tone. "I was told you fired enough," she said. The first shot he said that Florence Dugan stepped back and exclaimed: "If you haven't got enough--?" Witness did not perceive anything to indicate that the woman was not normal.

A Threat Two Years Ago Schumaker was reported to be in about his usual condition this morning, having apparently recovered from any temporary ill effects of the strain of yesterday. Mrs. Frank Palmer of South Academy street, with whom the prisoner boarded for about six months, two years ago, was the first witness called by the prosecution. She said that Schumaker called there for Florence frequently--sometimes say-

Story points, which have been going to the confectioner now rest in the vaults of the financial institutions and the children feel better, they say.

DID NOT LIKE WORK OF TEACHER-GUARD

Chippewa Falls Man Quits Position in Green Bay Reformatory Where He Had to be Behind Bars.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chippewa Falls, Wis., Oct. 11.—It didn't take Louis N. Jerome very long to find out that life as teacher and guard in a reformatory is not what it seems to be. Jerome took the civil service examination and received a high place. He was sent to Green Bay, and was placed in charge of a squad of youthful prisoners who assist the state to exist by cutting out overalls. Jerome found that he had to remain behind the bars all day, and thought he might as well be a prisoner as teach, so he went home on the next train.

They are threatened with the interstate commerce commission ruling, which imposes a penalty of a fine of not more than $5,000 or not more than two years in prison for violations, whether intentional or not.

Georgia State Fair.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10.—That this is one of Georgia's banner years for the value and quality of her farm products is well evidenced by the exhibits at the State Fair which opened today. The exhibits in the agricultural department are better in quality and greater in quantity than at any former fair. The live stock, poultry and horse shows are equal to their past high standards and there is also an extensive display of Georgia manufactures. The amusement features include races, balloon ascensions and high class midway attractions. The fair will continue sixteen days. Saturday, this week, is expected to be one of the biggest days of the fair, when William J. Bryan will deliver a public address.

BRYAN ANNOUNCES ISSUES IN RICHMOND SPEECH TODAY

Activity Of Roosevelt And Other Republicans
Causes Nebraskan To Change
His Plans.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Richmond, Va., Oct. 11.—William J. Bryan arrived in Richmond today to deliver an address at the Virginia States Fair. On the advice of close political associates with whom he has recently conferred, Mr. Bryan, it is understood, will make his address on the issues of the day, and in a sense the speech will be a curtain-raiser for the 1908 campaign.

According to those in a position to know, it has been Mr. Bryan's intention all along to defer the formal opening of his campaign until near the end of the year. The activity of President Roosevelt, Vice-President Fairbanks and other republican leaders has brought about a change in the plans of Mr. Bryan, however. His friends have urged him to declare himself at once upon the political issues of the day. They have impressed upon the Nebraskan the necessity for immediate action in view of the recent attacks upon him in southern states of the Atlantic seaboard.

Acting upon their advice Mr. Bryan decided to appear in person and answer the attack made upon him. After filling his Richmond date he will make a visit at a number of other places in Virginia and North Carolina. He will then go north, stopping en route for a conference in Washington, and later will be heard in a number of cities in New York state. He will remain in the east for some weeks and according to schedule will fill a number of dates in New England.

BROKER STATES HE MARRIED HER TWO YEARS AGO

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Oct. 11.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance more than a week ago of Samuel Clarkson, a young Englishman, and Helen Maloney, daughter of Martin Maloney, a Philadelphia millinaire, was given a highly sensational turn today. It was generally believed that the couple had eloped and had been married. Last night came the news from Montreal stating that the missing pair had been married by a Catholic priest in that city, had returned to New York and had sailed for Europe. Today comes the publication here of an unqualified statement from Arthur Herbert Osborn, a young broker of this city, that he and Miss Maloney were married in December, 1905, and the marriage was never annulled.

Disciples of Christ.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 11.—The national convention of the Disciples of Christ, which met in this city today with an attendance of delegates representing all parts of the country, promises to be one of the most important gatherings in the history of the denomination. An unusual number of questions of great importance are slated for consideration and action. Heretofore the national conventions have consisted for the most part of the annual meetings of the Disciples' missionary organizations. This year, however, there is to be a special convention to consider the invitation of the Inter-church Conference on Federation, which asks that the Disciples appoint official delegates to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, which is to have its first meeting in December of next year. Another important matter to come before the present meeting is a proposed revision of the American Christian Missionary Society, for which a committee was appointed a year ago at the convention in Buffalo.

AN AWFUL COLD WINTER NIGHT

Is the time when a dependable heating stove like the genuine ROUND OAK gives you back value received. No way dependable because the manufacturers have made it just as good as they can and it can be relied upon to furnish the heat, much or little, do the work steadily all night long, all day too, just as the weather requires. And it lasts, tight and sound, years and years. No joints open, the ash pit door continues to sit a-bright. Every year when you sit it up on the approach of winter you find it just as good as when you put it away. Isn't a stove like this worth two or three or a dozen of the kind that don't last—that don't hold the fire—that burn lots of fuel and about which the only attractive thing was a cheap price, which it wasn't worth? We will gladly explain fully why it will pay you best in the end to buy a ROUND OAK whenever you can find the time to call at our store. The genuine has the name ROUND OAK on the leg and door.

GREAT RALPH ROSE.

Latest Sensation of the Athletic Year of 1907.

HIS FAME AS SHOT PUTTER.

How He Made Good in His Resolve to Outdo Wesley Coe's Notable Record Breaking Shove at the Portland (Ore.) Meet.

Ralph Rose by recently breaking six weight throwing records became the latest sensation of a remarkable athletic season. He is a champion by nature. The first time he ever put the shot against his shoulder and flung it out into space his performance was of championship caliber. He journeyed out of the west in 1904 and was grabbed up by the Chicago Athletic association for its Olympic team of that year. At the St. Louis Olympic Rose put the shot 47 feet 8 inches, at that time a world's record. He also tied the great Sheridan at throwing the discus and was hailed as a marvelous athlete. In the winter of 1905-06 Rose visited New York and made a show of the shot put, beating them all with ease and setting a new world's record with the twenty-four pound shot, which still stands.

A year later we had big Rose at the national championships at Portland, Ore. Then he met his first defeat at the hands of Wesley Coe, the Bay State boy. Coe made a marvelous put of 49 feet 6 inches, which completely buried anything Rose had ever done. On the day of his defeat Rose said to his conqueror, "Well, Bill, I will get back at you if it takes me five years." No one thought he would, but this year he has made good his promise.

For a time Rose dropped out of sight. Now and then a report would float east about some of his doings. One said he was going to fight Jeffries. Another claimed he was in jail, and so on. It was not until this spring that Rose was reported to be on the athletic field once more. "The scorching took this news with a grain of salt and never thought for a minute that the California giant would 'come back' so strong.

Even when he went to Jamestown it was thought that he went more for the fun of the trip than anything else. In practice, however, Rose showed himself not only as good as he used to be, but a lot better. Time and time again he sailed the big iron sixteen pound shot over fifty feet. "The games came along, and Rose won his championship back, with the world's record as well. He topped Coe's great put at Portland by just one-half an inch.

Three years ago at St. Louis Rose was only a lad. He was full of heart and lung and wanted to match his strength against everybody. But three years have added a lot of wisdom to his curly head, and he is now a different sort of a fellow. While he knows what his good right arm is capable of doing, he never boasts of his ability and is the last man to look for trouble.

While at the University of Michigan in the winter of 1904-05 Rose was persuaded to try football. The Wolverines figured that the giant would be a tremendous success as a center rusher. Strange to say, with all his great strength and speed, Rose never shone as a gridiron star and dropped out after a few attempts to master the "smash and get smashed" game.

Unfortunately Rose is seriously thinking of quitting athletics. His loss would be a terrible one for America in the London Olympic games next year, as he could win the shot put with ease and probably score in the discus as well. Some athletic experts have styled Rose "the perfect man," but he can hardly be so if the pattern set up by physical culture experts counts. In all his great muscles there is not a knot, but his shoulders are round, and his knees slant in in a manner anything but athletic. If Rose were a smaller man you would never pick him out as an athlete, but his tremendous size—six feet five inches—"gives him away" and stamps him wherever he goes as one of the wonders of the athletic world.

When Dean Swift was called to the living of Limerick he inaugurated the custom of reading prayers on Wednesday and Friday. At the first Wednesday service he waited in vain for anyone to appear except his clerk Roger. At length he began, "Dear beloved Roger, the Scriptures moveth you and me in sundry places," and so proceeded to the end of the service.

Canal for Pleasure Unlikely.

Memphis Record: The Madison Journal says that the Fox and Wisconsin rivers improvement is well worth thinking about, if only for a pleasure waterway, and goes on to picture a trip from Green Bay to the Mississippi for pleasure. No doubt it would be a delightful trip but we doubt the government doing anything for a waterway that was only used for pleasure. There is more than this to the minds of those who have given the matter any thought, and there is no doubt of the desirability of this improvement for commercial purposes.

Knight-Errantry is Not Dead.

Milwaukee News: The young man of romantic and strenuous temperament that means because knighthood no longer is in flower should wipe his eyes and look about him for present-day opportunities. There never was a time in the world's history when a knight could go forth and kill folks with less danger to himself and with greater certainty of making a big kill than at the present time. There are all kinds of opportunities and no one is barred. If you can't be a captain of industry, at least you may be a motorman on a street railway or run an automobile for a prominent citizen.

COLONEL KIMBERLEY IS HONORED AGAIN

Made One of the Board of Visitors of the Waupaca Home—Goes to Jefferson Tomorrow.

Department Commander, G. A. R., John C. Martin has appointed as a visiting committee to the Waupaca Veterans' home, Comrades E. O. Kimberley, Post 29, Janesville; O. A. Britton, Post 120, Superior; George Spratt, Post 12, Sheboygan. This is the most important yearly appointment in the Grand Army. This committee is required to make two visits during their term of office, and make a thorough unbiased report at the next department encampment which will be held at Racine June, 1908. Tomorrow Colonel Kimberley goes to Jefferson, where he will take part in the unveiling of the soldiers' monument, giving several solos on the program. The occasion is one of great importance to the old soldiers of Jefferson county and among the speakers are Dr. E. L. Eaton, Ex-Gov. W. D. Board, Col. J. A. Watrous and Department Commander J. C. Martin.

MAKING MASTER MARINERS

her offspring, he had developed so much.

Then came the graduation exercises and with their papers in their pockets the successful lads go into the world to seek a livelihood. It must be understood, however, that a graduate from one of the nautical schools does not at once become an officer in the merchant marine. Like the graduate of law school or medicine, he has only made his preparation for a career; but with the difference that he has also learned a trade that will always secure him a berth as a petty officer.

The recommended course is to ship as a seaman and thus work up, but the demand for these graduates is so great that the majority obtain positions as quarter-masters on coasting steamers, while others go as first and second mates on sailing vessels. A few are taken as quarter-masters on trans-Atlantic steamers, and as an illustration of the thorough training of the schoolships there are some graduates not yet 21 years of age, who are first and second mates of ocean steamers of several thousand tons.

Good education and a systematic training will enable anyone to lead those without these advantages in any line of business, and steamship companies knowing this, are constantly endeavoring to better the personnel on their ships with the result that the demand for schoolship graduates is greater than the supply.

In conclusion, I wish to thank Commander Atwater and Messrs. H. D. Moses, R. H. Webb and N. L. Ingraham, of the Pennsylvania Nautical School Ship Saratoga, for their illustrations, which depict the making of a master mariner.

BOAT EXERCISE UNDER SAIL

BOAT EXERCISE UNDER OARS

STUDENTS IN DRESS UNIFORM

In years gone by—and not so many, either—when a lad wanted to go to sea and reach the quarterdeck via the hawse-hole, as is the method of shipping an apprentice, known, as a rule, the lad had a hard time of it for a number of years depending entirely upon his own ability either as a fighter or his knowledge.

As it was easier to climb aft by provisos than knowledge, there developed the famous hawse-hole mate, a man who won his spurs with the fist if he could and the belaying pin when he met his match in pugilism.

While to a great extent it was the lad who ran away from home who had the roughest experience, as a whole there has always been young men whose parents believed that a few years at sea would do them good and fit them for a place in the great business world.

In such cases it became the fashion to indenture the lad for a four-year apprenticeship to some worthy master, who was supposed to teach the youngster something of navigation and make a skipper out of him.

Theoretically the plan was a good one. The boy, under the close eye of a great skipper, would surely develop those traits and ability for which his superior officer was noted and become an able and efficient seaman.

Practically the plan was a rank failure in most instances and those who reached the quarterdeck did so with but very little assistance from the master or the mates, who once at sea, began to figure on making a monopoly of the business, and the erstwhile skipper learned that for at least two years the closest to learning navigation he would get would be the guiding of a holystone around the vessel's decks or doing the kind of work that was especially set aside for the ship's boy—and dirty work at that.

There is but one great universal law at sea and that is "the survival of the fittest," and nowhere else is that law so rigorously enforced as on the mighty waters. It applies with equal force to all things, animate or inanimate, whether it be fish or flesh, wood or iron and so the man who went on board a vessel as a common seaman became a captain only when he had proven his worth and his knowledge was gleamed by self-sacrifice and perseverance.

The apprentice found that if he, at the end of the two years before the mast did not care to take up the study necessary to fit him for the rank of officer there was no one to urge him and if he did study there was a reluctance on the part of the officers to give him a lift. The natural result was that many a bright lad who went to sea under those conditions was discouraged and the fighting of life's battle about became a question of individual and independent concern. If he succeeded he merely followed the law of nature and arose because of his inherent ability and would have succeeded in any other line of business. If he failed that was the end of it and there are today in the forecastles of deep-water ships old men who have never held the papers of even a third officer, and many of them over 60.

But to speak of today, the past is gone and it must be but a memory—for the past score of years has seen a radical change in the business of the sea. Sailing ships are becoming fewer and fewer and steamships more and more numerous. The nations of the world whose shores kiss the sea are increasing not only their merchant marine but their navy and the great steam monsters must be officered and manned.

There has been, and always will be a romantic feeling about the navy that will ever tempt a lad to cast his fortunes abroad, but with the enormous growth of the fighting ships and with every nation armed to the teeth, war seems farther away than ever and the international battles of the future will be those of commerce and the merchant marine will, in time, become of far more importance to the United States than the Navy, which will take the relative position of an insurance policy.

With such conditions and the great strides that have been made in types of vessels the merchant skipper must be a man of greater ability than his predecessor of 20 years ago. He must not only have knowledge of the sea and its waves, understand navigation perfectly, but he must be a man of general knowledge, have ability to grasp new conditions and, without know how to conduct himself in the social world.

To meet these conditions the boy who now ships before the mast finds the road to success a rough one, and he will have spent the better part of his life before he has mastered his calling, and then he will, in the opinion of owners, be too old, for, as with callings on the land, the old man is not wanted at sea.

England, France, Germany, Italy and some other European nations long since met the condition face to face and organized training schools for the merchant marine. England went a step further and not only did she subsidize her merchant marine to increase its growth and efficiency and to be able to claim the vessels in time of war, but she created a Royal Naval Reserve, which is comprised of merchant masters and mates.

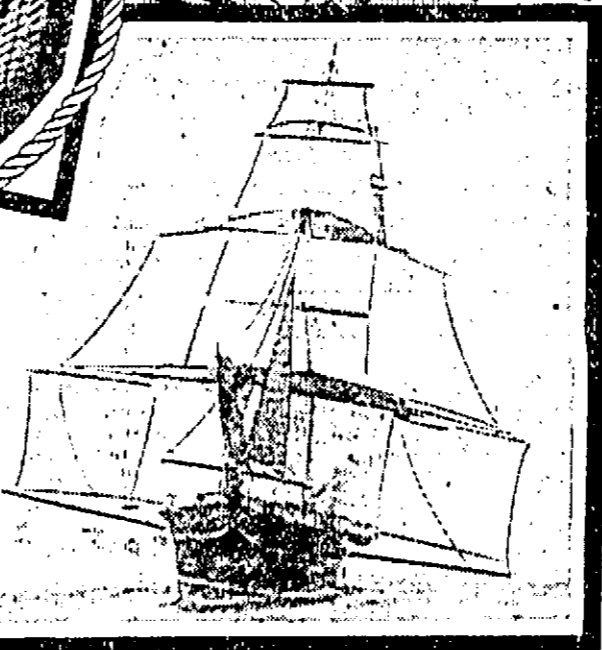

As far back as 1870 the question of establishing a merchant marine school in this country was agitated, and Congress in 1874 decided that since other nations had adopted the plan it was not fitting that this country should join in the movement, and the following act was passed and approved June 20 of that year:

"Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Navy, to promote nautical education, is hereby authorized and empowered to furnish upon the application in writing of a governor of a state, a suitable vessel of the Navy, with all her apparel, charts, books and instruments of navigation, provided the same can be spared without detriment to the naval service, to be used for the benefit of college having a nautical branch, established at each or any of the ports of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and San Francisco, upon one condition that there shall be maintained at such ports a school or branch of a school for the instruction of youths in navigation, seamanship, marine engineering, and all matters pertaining to the proper construction, equipment and sailing of vessels or any particular branch thereof, and the President of the United States is hereby authorized when, in his opinion, the same can be done, without detriment to the public service, to detail proper officers of the Navy as superintendent of or instructors in such schools; provided that if any such schools be discontinued or the good of the naval service shall require, such vessel named in the act have availed the opportunity to secure ships from the government for the teaching and building of the master mariner. Boston has the Enterprise, New York the St. Mary and Philadelphia the Saratoga. Prior to the earthquake San Francisco had taken up the subject with the government, but there is now some doubt whether the school will be established. Baltimore has never asked for a vessel.

While the government loans the ships and their equipment, together with officers, the moment the vessel is received by the city the latter assumes all expense of operating and the great growth of the Navy, the government has withdrawn its officers from the schools, and now each of them have but one regular commander.

The Enterprise, St. Mary, and Saratoga are old-time sailing ships, built in the 1850s, but they are substantial craft, well kept up and thoroughly seaworthy, just as capable of making transatlantic voyages as any sailing craft.

Of the three vessels, the Saratoga, which is known as the Pennsylvania Nautical School, does the most actual work, making two voyages each year, cruising to Europe four months in summer and to the West Indies four months in the winter, thus giving her boys plenty of opportunity to learn their calling.

The Saratoga is supported by the State of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia, the annual appropriation being $30,000, and students must be of actual residents of the state. Any boy between 16 and 19 years, having a desire, aptitude or inclination for a sea life may enter, but he must meet with certain qualifications: He must be of sound constitution, free from all physical defects, which include poor eyesight, etc. He must be of good character and produce certificates from at least two responsible citizens.

Education is a great factor in all callings, particularly that of the merchant mariner, and it is essential that the candidates be well grounded, but the directors of the school, not wishing to deprive those who have not had advantages, will, if the candidates measure up to the other standards, waive a trifle in the educational examination, and if the lad can spell to a fair degree of accuracy, read with correctness and ease, write legibly and exhibit a fair knowledge of decimal and fractional arithmetic he will have little difficulty in qualifying and being admitted.

The school furnishes to each student board and tuition, a mattress, pair of blankets, hammock and mess utensils, but he will have to find himself with the following outfit:

- 1 Uniform.
- 1 Blue Cloth Cap, with Ribbon.
- 1 Kilt Watch Cap.

shall immediately be restored to the Secretary of the Navy, and the officers so detailed recalled; and provided further, that no person shall be sentenced to receive at such schools, as a punishment or commutation of punishment for crime."

- To date three of the five cities
- 2 Suits of Blue Uniform.
- 3 Suits of White Uniform.
- 3 White Hats.
- 1 Short Pen Jacket (dark blue)
- 1 Pair Rubbed Boots.
- 2 Pairs Leather Shoes.
- 1 Suit Oil Skins.
- 3 Towels.
- 3 Pairs of Heavy Socks.
- 2 Pairs of Light Socks.
- 1 Blue Kilt Jersey.
- 2 Pairs Heavy Drawers.
- 2 Heavy Undershirts.
- 2 Pairs Light Merino Drawers.
- 1 Pocket Handkerchief.
- 1 Black Necktie, Silk.
- 1 Black Necktie, Mohair.
- 1 Scrub Brush.
- 1 Tooth Brush.
- 1 Hair Brush.
- 1 Blacking Brush.
- 1 Box Blacking.
- 2 Combs (one fine and one coarse).
- 1 Thread, Needles, Wax, Tape, Thimble, and Buttons, together with such other articles as he may need during the term.

The above articles may be procured for $60 or $70, and, with the exception of shoes and a few other articles, should, with proper care, last two years, which is the length of the term. In addition, parents or guardians are expected to furnish the lad with spending money and a fair allowance would be from $2.50 to $5.00 for each foreign port visited on the winter cruise, with an additional allowance of from $15 to $25 for these youngsters who are expected to visit London or Paris.

This spending money is not absolutely necessary, as they can remain on board the ship and just make ashore visits, but by having a little money, it enables the boy to broaden his knowledge by making side trips under the direction of the ship's officers, who very carefully see that the lads do not get into mischief and who point out the places of interest. If the parent has any doubt as to what use the money will be put, the superintendent of the ship will take charge of it and see that it is issued judiciously.

Granting that a boy has passed his examination and is ready to begin the making of a master mariner, he reports to the ship for duty. The superintendent of the Saratoga is Commander Charles Nelson Atwater, U. S. N., a man who is deeply willing and ready to give them an additional lift in their duties.

The lad may be from the inner part of the state and never seen any body of water except a creek, but that does not matter—such boys often make the best seamen and officers. After seeing that all his belongings are marked with his name and number, he is given his ship's kit. He is first taught how to swing his hammock, how to lie in it and how to trice it up in the morning.

Of course, he is made familiar with the rules of the school, which are about the same as any institution, with the exception that it is navy discipline, and it depends entirely upon the boy himself whether he makes good. There is no bribe, bread-and-butter punishment or anything of that kind, for if the boy is bad and creates disorder he is merely sent ashore and that ends his career as far as the nautical school is concerned.

While the ship is floating out for her cruise the boys turn to study seamanship from the lowest rung on the ladder. They make the acquaintance of the ship's bible, the holystone and then put in the remainder of the day studying what they do not know and brushing up their mathematics, etc.

At last the time approaches when the ship is about to go to sea, and then comes on board a dozen husky merchant sailors, who will help run the vessel and who will work side by side with the boys showing them just what to do, and when there is a gale, and the work aloft exceedingly dangerous, the professionals will take the duties, at least until the boys have learned how to have one hand for themselves and one hand and two feet for the ship.

Sailing day is always interesting, for then of the 40 or more boys on board fully half bid their parents goodbye at the gangway and many a frail lad has his mother clinging to him until the last moment. The commander gives the word, the lines are cast off and the ship, in tow of a tug, starts on her long journey.

Then begins life aloft in earnest. The boys are divided into watches, the newer lads assorted with the older ones and the professional sailors, and it is then four hours off and four hours on, with the dog watches between.

To go aloft and furl or set the rove in a breeze is the height of ambition of every boy, and were a boy to embark in a regular merchantman it would be his first duty. If he did so, well and good if he fell and broke his neck it made no difference, for such is the law of the sea, but on the Saratoga the lad reaches royal by easy stages, becoming accustomed to the roll and pitch of the ship.

Seasickness and homesickness? Oh, yes, there is plenty of it, and the first two or three days out of sight of land are usually and once for all one-half of the "rankies" and both the commander and surgeon have their hands full, the former administering words of encouragement and the latter pills and powder until the mental and physical storms blow over and the sunshine of life breaks through the clouds.

In good weather when the ship is on her course, with a steady wind, the boys are taught how to reef and splice, set up rigging, take down and place spars and a hundred and one things the seaman should know. From doing deckwork the new boys go aloft, and by the time land has been sighted there are few who cannot man the upper topsail yard, while the more agile think nothing of wrestling with the main yard.

In the dog watch the boys have their fun. Youngsters are discouraged in smoking, but a piano on the main deck is a source of great pleasure, while the older men teach the lads the art of fancy cording. But, as a rule, there is very little idle time, for there is always plenty to do. To learn seamanship from the forecable to the quarterdeck in two years is no mean undertaking, and the lad who wishes to make it has to put in every available moment.

The first-year boys devote themselves to learning the rudiments, handling sails, heaving the lead, studying from the second-year lads are taught navigation and the handling of a ship.

The second-year boys superintend and aid in instructing, while the officers look on. In order to place responsibility upon the second-year boys and allow them to show their knowledge, each day one is made the officer of the deck, and it is his duty to navigate the ship for the time. He at noon must work out the vessel's position, and must give all orders for trimming sail, changing course, etc.

The ship may be running smoothly along with studding-sails set when one of the officers dropping a keg over the side, sings out the dread, "Man overboard!" The lad in charge of the ship must show his ability. His orders for taking off sail and placing the vessel on the wind and the calling away of the life-boat crew must be given rapidly, distinctly and in proper sequence to avoid confusion, and many an over-confident youngster has made a laughable mess of it.

It is a happy day when the word is passed, "Tomorrow we pick up the land," and, with the rising of the sun there are two or more youngsters on the main royal eager to report the first cloud-like streak of terra firma.

Silently the ship glides into harbor and her anchor chain sings its song as it rattles through the hawsepipe, and there is a relaxation of sea work and an opportunity to go ashore and see strange sights.

All is not play, however, for there are drills in the small boats and the lads deficient in studies have to catch up, but there is found ample time for recreation, and the boys miss but little as they sail from port to port, and when the homeward-bound pennant is set and the ship points her bow toward home there is a remarkable difference in the crew that three months or more before came on board not knowing the sheet anchor from the spunkier.

Not only is the crew changed from a point of discipline and knowledge, but even physically, and the frail lads the fellows from up-state are tough and hardy, for there is nothing that develops the boy like the tone of sea air, plain but substantial food, plenty of exercise and not too much sleep.

The homeward cruise is like the onward, except that there is less hard work, on rather the boys have learned the knack of taking a turn at the precise moment and there is throughout the ship a feeling of confidence. There is no fear of black, racing storm-clouds or heaving seas, for there is not a lad on board who is not capable of rating as an able seaman.

If the boys were happy when the lookout-man picked up the first bit of foreign shore, words will not describe the emotion when there comes from aft the cry, "Land-ho!" and the distant streak is "Home sweet home." Every movement is awakened, and it is with an air of impatience that they watch the land coming nearer and nearer, for they know that already the watchman at the cape has observed the ship and reported her to the Maritime Exchange and the afternoon papers will print the news.

It sometimes happens that when there is known to be a gale at sea and the training ships are supposed to be in the vicinity, some reported, who, perhaps never saw the water save from the deck of a side wheel excursion steamer, writes a column of the possible disaster. The result is that the mothers of the boys about the shore offices of the ships and they are usually given scant news, for there is none, but plenty of assurance that the ships are all right, and when she is reported coming up the river every lad's mother is at the dock waiting.

When the ship had warped in and the gangway lowered there were some surprises in store and instead of the pale, wan and sickly lads there tumbled off the wharf two score bronzed hefty and tall young giants who nearly squeezed the life out of their mothers, much to the latter's surprise, for they can scarce believe their eyes. It is a matter of record that one fond mother actually failed to recognize

Miss Ida M. Tarbell

Miss Ida M. Tarbell, for a number of years associated with McChesney's Magazine, but now with the American Magazine, is noted as one of the earliest writers on the subject of corporation evils. She was born in Erie county, Pa., November 5, 1857, and was the daughter of Franklin S. and Esther Ann Tarbell. She graduated from the "Glimpse" high schools, and from Allegheny college. About five years ago Miss Tarbell began publishing in McChesney's Magazine a series of papers on alleged malpractices of the Standard Oil company which created a sensation. She has written the history of the Standard Oil company and this is her most notable contribution to literature.

SAD ENDING OF FORMER RESIDENT

MRS. JENNIE STEVENS FOUND DEAD IN CHICAGO RIVER.

EVIDENTLY WAS MURDERED

Lady Well Remembered in Janesville and Niece of Charles Valentine—Interment Will Be in This City.

As announced in last evening's Gazette the mortal remains of Miss Jennie Stevens, a niece of Postmaster Charles Valentine, were found yesterday in the Chicago river. Every evidence is that a murder was committed though the cause can not be ascertained. Postmaster Valentine went to Chicago yesterday and will bring the remains to Janesville for interment.

Word of her disappearance was received early yesterday morning and friends in the city were most anxious. It was not, however, until her dead body was identified that her fate was surely known and then her violent end can only be surmised. Miss Stevens went to Chicago with her parents twenty-nine years ago. Her father, R. Stevens, was a well known real estate man. She was educated in the old Denbarn seminary on the north side, which was attended by children of many well known families. Miss Stevens was known among musical circles in the city. Her instruction as an organist was obtained under Charles Eddy. She was an only child.

The Chicago Inter Ocean says of the crime, "Mentally deranged since the death of her friend, Mrs. Bessie Hollister, for whose murder Richard Evans was hanged, Miss Jennie Stevens was a 3921 Langley avenue, a co-worker with Mrs. Hollister in the Wesleyan Methodist church, met with an equally tragic death yesterday morning under circumstances which may parallel the case of Mrs. Hollister."

"Miss Stevens' body was found in the mud and slime of a culvert of the new bridge under construction at Husted street over the north branch of the Chicago river. While the police are content to call the death accidental, they admit there are so many puzzling circumstances in connection with it that it may prove to be a murder mystery."

Murder Theory Entertained—"Murder, suicide, and accidental death were the theories on which the police of the Husted street station worked yesterday. The suicide theory was dropped quickly as out of the question. Unable to fix the murder upon any person, the police accepted the theory of accidental death as an easy solution of the mystery."

Police Search for Man—"The police are searching for the man described by Detective Hoge as having volunteered to escort Miss Stevens to a car. Hogebaum told the police that while he was directing her a roughly dressed character stopped up and said he had already directed her."

"Miss Stevens, who was 40 years old, left her home at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and her movements till 11 o'clock Wednesday night are unknown. In this respect the case closely resembles that of her friend, Mrs. Hollister. At 11 o'clock Wednesday night, according to information gained by the police, Miss Stevens was near the Husted street bridge, when she asked directions of O. J. Hokebaum, night watchman at the Maxwell & Ridd box factory."

"Hogebaum informed the police that while he was directing Miss Stevens, who appeared bewildered and distraught, to a car which would take her to Husted and Thirty-ninth street, he was approached by an unidentified man, who volunteered to take her to the car. That was the last time she was seen till her dead body was found when workmen on the bridge came to work yesterday morning."

Body Found in Mud—"The body was found lying face downward. There was not the slightest sign that Miss Stevens had struggled to free herself from the position in which she was found. The soft mud would easily have indicated any attempt on her part to get out had she accidentally fallen in. Instead the body remained in the position in which it had evidently first struck the mud."

"Coroner's Physician Hinchart, who made a post-mortem examination, says death was due to suffocation because of the mud which filled the mouth and throat. He refuses to say, however, whether the woman was thrown or had fallen into the mud."

"There are many bruises on the face and body. Several abrasions on the skull were revealed when the scalp was laid back by the physician's knife, but it cannot be determined whether they came from blows or from a fall. Two large bruises appear on the face, one across the nose, and another on the lip. The knees are badly bruised, and one wrist is black and blue, as though it had been forcibly held in a strong grip."

Money Is Not Stolen—"The police say if the woman was roughly handled it was not for the purpose of robbery, as her watch was found on her person, while her pockets, containing a small sum of money, and her comb were found on the river bank some distance from the body."

COFFEE MATCHED AT LAST

A Test Package Mailed Free.

A new product—Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee—is said to be a closely matched Java and Mocha Coffee in flavor, taste, and aroma, as to be scarcely discernible from the very best brands of real Coffee. And yet says Dr. Shoop, "Health Coffee is not even a grain of real Coffee in it. I make my Health Coffee from pure, healthful, tested grains of Cereals, with malt, nuts, etc. This is why I have named it Health Coffee."

Again, the tedious 20 or 30 minutes wait, necessary in preparing other Coffee substitutes is mostly saved. My new Health Coffee is made in exactly one minute—in 60 seconds.

If Coffee drinking makes you dull and listless, if it disturbs your stomach, your heart, or your kidneys, try my Health Coffee and see for yourself what it can and will do for you. Send 4 cents in stamps to cover postage, to Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., and receive a liberal test package entirely free. 14 pound package Health Coffee sells at 21 cents per lb.

GOOD ROADS' EXPERT HAS LEFT CLINTON

Expert Cooley Leaves Model Road Near Clinton to Be Completed by Assistants.

Clinton, Wis., Oct. 10.—J. E. Cooley, the expert of the government model roads force here, left for the west last night and does not expect to return, as the work is so nearly completed that his assistants can finish it. Mr. Cooley made a splendid impression here while with us and convinced all who came in contact with him that he was thoroughly posted in a "good road" building and he put in a piece of road that certainly is an ideal model of a good road, not only a good country road but one as can be found in any city.

Chairman S. S. Jones certainly has labored hard and is entitled to unlimited praise in bringing it to pass right in the face of bitterest kind of opposition here at home and in surrounding towns.

James Winegar, who bought the C. L. Tuttle place and livery barn, is making many improvements, which will add greatly to the popularity of the establishment. One of the very best things is a ladies' waiting and rest room, fitted with good and easy chairs, couches and toilet room, and a very comfortable and convenient place for the ladies to go when through their shopping. Mr. Winegar has also purchased several very pretty and stylish rugs.

Edward Jones, heard on all sides that the old reliable Clinton Herald is to be suspended publication, that, too, after its long life of 23 years. Mr. Cheever, the owner, who very unfortunately has but one hand, finds he is unable to run the paper without competent help which he has been unable to secure.

Arthur Loomis, living one and a half miles north of town, is very ill with a complication of diseases and his recovery is a matter of grave doubt with chances against him. His friends are without number and his illness has cast a gloom over this community, where he has lived all his life, attending our public schools, graduating, and later spending one year at the state university and one at Beloit.

Rev. Clyde McGee, pastor of the First Congregational church, will give a series of four lectures Oct. 14-18, on the Book of James. It is doubtful will be very interesting and is looking forward to with a great deal of interest.

Miss Helen Olds has been quite ill for several days, but is recovering now and will soon be able to re-enter school again.

Rev. Clyde McGee's mother and sister are here from Michigan to make an extended visit at the parsonage.

The Delavan lake assembly is sorely pressed to raise money to meet their indebtedness. The proposed assessment or levy on each lot-owner did not meet with ready and willing response and had to be given up. The assembly has been a losing venture financially for several seasons, but this last year nearly swamped the lot holders. The many Clinton stockholders are ready and willing to do all in their power to straighten things out and get it on a safe and stable foundation again.

*Mrs. J. C. Howarth is ill at her home at the corner of Milwaukee avenue and Church street.

*Mrs. J. M. Shepard, son and daughter, of Beloit, were in town today inspecting the glassing gardens of O. L. Woodward and O. H. Florida. They are starting a garden at their home and purchased a large amount (50,000) seeds of Mr. Woodward.

*Mrs. H. Newman left Thursday for an extended visit to Milwaukee, Racine and other places.

Rev. Chas. J. R. Bailey is moving today to his new charge, West Allis, Wis. Mr. Bailey and family made many very near and dear friends while here.

SOUTH SPRING VALLEY

South Spring Valley, Oct. 9.—Gillman and Alfred Safford, who have been visiting friends hereabout, returned Monday to their home in northern Wisconsin. George Deland accompanied them.

Mr. and Mrs. John Richmond entertained company Saturday night.

The town is building an iron bridge by Wm. Sprague's on the town road line.

Miss Olga Hanson assisted Mrs. Julia Stavdahl in housework.

John Stoen and Edward Hoff are clearing place of woodland for Sever Stavdahl.

Mr. Thingwall is suffering from hemorrhoids of the lungs.

*Mrs. Martha Olin is confined to the house with a severe cold.

Henry Steom assisted John Hogge in corn cutting this week.

Miss Martha Olin, who was the guest of her mother the past two weeks, returned to Brodhead Wednesday to assist Mrs. Bowen in the restaurant.

Frank Richmond called on James Fletcher Saturday evening.

Koshkonong, Oct. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. of Beloit visited at Charles Vogel's last week.

*Mrs. Will Miller visited an aunt at Beloit last week.

*Mrs. Charles Vogel and sister, Mrs. Harry Vogel, visited relatives at Summit recently.

Robert Brown and Miss Helen Grant of Rock Prairie were callers at John Shaw's Sunday evening.

William Knike is having an addition built to his house.

GOOD ROADS' EXPERT HAS LEFT CLINTON

Expert Cooley Leaves Model Road Near Clinton to Be Completed by Assistants.

Clinton, Wis., Oct. 10.—J. E. Cooley, the expert of the government model roads force here, left for the west last night and does not expect to return, as the work is so nearly completed that his assistants can finish it. Mr. Cooley made a splendid impression here while with us and convinced all who came in contact with him that he was thoroughly posted in a "good road" building and he put in a piece of road that certainly is an ideal model of a good road, not only a good country road but one as can be found in any city.

Chairman S. S. Jones certainly has labored hard and is entitled to unlimited praise in bringing it to pass right in the face of bitterest kind of opposition here at home and in surrounding towns.

James Winegar, who bought the C. L. Tuttle place and livery barn, is making many improvements, which will add greatly to the popularity of the establishment. One of the very best things is a ladies' waiting and rest room, fitted with good and easy chairs, couches and toilet room, and a very comfortable and convenient place for the ladies to go when through their shopping. Mr. Winegar has also purchased several very pretty and stylish rugs.

Edward Jones, heard on all sides that the old reliable Clinton Herald is to be suspended publication, that, too, after its long life of 23 years. Mr. Cheever, the owner, who very unfortunately has but one hand, finds he is unable to run the paper without competent help which he has been unable to secure.

Arthur Loomis, living one and a half miles north of town, is very ill with a complication of diseases and his recovery is a matter of grave doubt with chances against him. His friends are without number and his illness has cast a gloom over this community, where he has lived all his life, attending our public schools, graduating, and later spending one year at the state university and one at Beloit.

Rev. Clyde McGee, pastor of the First Congregational church, will give a series of four lectures Oct. 14-18, on the Book of James. It is doubtful will be very interesting and is looking forward to with a great deal of interest.

Miss Helen Olds has been quite ill for several days, but is recovering now and will soon be able to re-enter school again.

Rev. Clyde McGee's mother and sister are here from Michigan to make an extended visit at the parsonage.

The Delavan lake assembly is sorely pressed to raise money to meet their indebtedness. The proposed assessment or levy on each lot-owner did not meet with ready and willing response and had to be given up. The assembly has been a losing venture financially for several seasons, but this last year nearly swamped the lot holders. The many Clinton stockholders are ready and willing to do all in their power to straighten things out and get it on a safe and stable foundation again.

LUSITANIA SETS NEW OCEAN RECORD

CROSSES FROM DAUNT'S ROCK IN FOUR DAYS, 20 HOURS.

TRIUMPH OF TURBINES

Monster Cunarder's Average Speed Is 24 Knots an Hour—Last Day's Run the Fastest.

New York, Oct. 11.—The Cunarder Lusitania, with practically all the transatlantic records to her credit, arrived aboard the Sandy Hook lightship at 1:25 a. m. Friday.

The time for the trip from Daunt's Rock to the Sandy Hook light, the official course over which the speed trials were made, was four days, 20 hours. The last day's run was apparently the fastest of the trip, the giant liner hitting up her speed to 25 knots an hour over a smooth sea with little wind to interfere with her.

The Lusitania beats her time for her maiden trip by approximately five hours, her time on that trip being five days, 54 minutes.

Averaged Nearly 24 Knots.

The Lusitania's time averages almost exactly 24 knots an hour for the entire trip. Her arrival at 1:20, or five minutes earlier than she passed the lightship would have made her speed exactly 24 knots. Her average on her first trip was 23.01 knots.

The Lusitania came to anchor between the lightship and the bar, about four miles from the point of Sandy Hook. She reached quarantine about seven o'clock and docked a few hours later.

Captures Nearly All Records.

With the Lusitania's trip the Cunard line and England capture from Germany the eagerly sought record for possessing the fastest ship on the Atlantic. The Hamburg-American liner Deutschland has held the record for a number of years.

Steamship men also claim that the achievement of the Lusitania proves the superiority of turbine engines over the reciprocating type. Reports from the ship state that the trip has been a pleasant one and the ship has shown little vibration.

The Lusitania on this trip captures practically all transatlantic records. Her best day's run, 615 knots, is nine knots better than the former record held by the Deutschland. Her average speed exceeds the former record of 23.58 held by the Kaiser Wilhelm II. of the North German Lloyd line, and her record for the trip across the ocean beats that of the Deutschland, which crossed from Cherbourg, a much longer course, in five days, 11 hours, 54 minutes, her average speed being 23.15 knots an hour.

TRIES TO JUMP INTO OCEAN.

Chicago Passenger on Steamer Attempts to End His Life.

New York, Oct. 11.—Herbert Fletcher, 40, of Chicago, attempted to end his life by jumping into the sea in midocean, according to a report made by the officers of the steamer Moltke which arrived here Thursday from Genoa and Naples.

The Moltke was three days out when De Hon made the attempt to hurl himself into the sea. He was caught before he had succeeded in carrying out his apparent intention and from that time until the steamer arrived here he was kept under constant observation.

Fatal Battle in Columbus.

Columbus, O., Oct. 11.—As the result of a dispute over a dish of potatoes in a restaurant on East Town street Thursday night, Adam K. Neece, aged 35, is dead; Fred Henderlick, a waiter in the restaurant, is dying in a hospital in a critical condition with a bullet in his head, and Patrolman James Lotsepelch has a bullet wound in his hand. Neece shot Henderlick and when Officer Lotsepelch went to arrest him he put a bullet through the policeman's hand. Lotsepelch then killed him.

Will Found School of Trades.

St. Louis, Oct. 11.—David Rankin, Jr., an eccentric millionaire who lives in a cheap lodging house here, announced Thursday his plans for founding the David Rankin, Jr., school of Mechanical Trades, to which he will give most of his fortune. The first endowment will exceed $1,000,000 and the first building is to be completed within a year.

Black Hand Plotters Sentenced.

Newcastle, Pa., Oct. 11.—Twenty-three Italians recently arrested in connection with numerous Black Hand outrages and who had either been convicted or pleaded guilty, were sentenced Thursday by Judge William B. Porter. The highest sentence was ten years.

Prince Murdered by Peasants.

Tiflis, Oct. 11.—The body of Prince Tsereteli, a cousin of Prince I. G. Tsereteli, member of the late dynasty from Kutais, was found hucked to pieces in the suburb of Gori Thursday. The police have evidence that the crime was committed by peasants.

National Union Secretary Dies.

CASSIE CHADWICK IS DEAD

WOMAN BANK WRECKER EXPIRES
IN OHIO PENITENTIARY.

Comatose When the End Comes—
Her Son Arrives Too Late—
She Left No Statement.

Columbus, O., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, whose amazing financial transactions culminated in the wrecking of an Oberlin bank, died in the women's ward at the Ohio penitentiary Thursday night at 10:15.

Mrs. Chadwick had been in a comatose condition for some hours previous to her death and the end came peacefully. No friends or relatives waited at her bedside. Her son, Emil Hoover, had been summoned from Cleveland, but he arrived 15 minutes after she expired.

Mrs. Chadwick's body was removed to a local undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. It will be taken to Cleveland Friday by Emil Hoover, but no plans for the funeral in that city have yet been announced. Mrs. Chadwick embraced the Catholic faith and was baptized a few days before her death. Thursday morning she received the last anointment.

It was frequently reported that Mrs. Chadwick had made a statement regarding her various financial transactions and it was expected that if such a statement had been made it would be given to the public after her death. The prison officials declared Thursday night that she had never made any statement so far as they were aware, and T. E. Powell, her attorney here, also said she had made no statement to his knowledge.

The decline in Mrs. Chadwick's health began almost from the time she entered the penitentiary on January 12, 1905, sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. She fretted incessantly over her confinement and worried about her troubles until it became almost impossible for her to sleep. At times she was so peevish the patience of the prison officials was sorely tried. She was a robust and healthy looking woman when she came to the prison, but she gradually wasted away and had lost fully 30 pounds at the time of her death. The physicians declared she was the victim of a total nervous collapse, described in medical science as neurasthenia.

TRAINOR KNOWS NOTHING OF LOANS

NEVER HEARD OF $20,000,000
CHARGED TO HIS ACCOUNT.

NEW OIL TRUST PUZZLE

Southern Pipe Line's Books Show
That Unassigned Vouchers Were Accepted for Immense Sums.

New York, Oct. 11.—Loans of over $20,000,000, which the books of the Southern Pipe Line company show were made to P. S. Trainor between 1899 and 1905, became more puzzling of solution to Frank B. Kellogg, conducting the federal suit against the Standard Oil company, Thursday, when Mr. Trainor, taking the witness stand in the oil suit, testified that the money had never been paid to him and that he had never heard of the account.

The Southern's books show that unassigned vouchers were received for these loans, and that the money was never handed back to the company. Mr. Trainor said that he was formerly crude oil purchasing agent for the Standard Oil Company of New York, and, as such, purchased all the oil and sold it to the refineries. He said he acted in a similar capacity now for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Knows Nothing of Loans.

Mr. Kellogg called Mr. Trainor's attention to the various loans, amounting to over $20,000,000, which were made by the Southern Pipe Line company and charged to "P. S. Trainor," and asked him to tell all he knew concerning the loans.

"I do not know anything about these loans," answered Mr. Trainor. "I had an oil account with the Southern company, but no money account. I never gave them any vouchers and never heard anything about the loans."

Mr. Trainor said that he fixed the price paid for crude oil after consulting with John L. Archbold, vice president of the Standard. These consultations were held daily, Mr. Trainor said, and after they were over he made public the market price of crude oil.

Old Reports Destroyed.

H. M. Tifford, treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of California, and president of the Continental Oil company, when asked to produce the reports of the Continental company, testified that whenever a new report was received he invariably destroyed the old one. The reports of the Continental contained information regarding business done by competing oil companies.

Mr. Kellogg will have a conference with Attorney General Bonaparte at Washington Friday to discuss the progress of the government's case against the Standard Oil company.

Biglow Sent Blackmail Letters.

Denver, Col., Oct. 11.—Kemp V. Biglow, the young clerk from Bryan, O., who mailed dynamite packages last Monday to Gov. Buchtel and other prominent citizens of Denver, confessed Thursday that he was also the author of blackmailing letters mailed on August 29 last to the Burlington railroad, the Moffat road, the Adams Express company, the Daniels & Fisher Stores company, the May Shoe & Clothing company, and to Postmaster Paul Sours.

Brokers Lose $40,000 Through Clerk.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—Though no legal steps were taken in the matter, it became known here Thursday that Ervin & Co., bankers and brokers of this city, recently sustained a loss of $40,000 through the speculations of a confidential clerk.
